

Writing Emails

Email is electronic mail

- 1) Email is a way of sending messages from one computer to another.
- 2) You send them to a person's or company's email address.

tedsmith@tedstravel.co.uk

The bit before the '@' sign is usually the person's name or title.

Lay out emails correctly

All emails have certain features. Make sure you include all the right information.

EXAMPLE:

The diagram shows an email interface with the following components and annotations:

- To: tedsmith@tedstravel.co.uk (Annotation: Put the email address of the main person you're writing to.)
- CC: janemathews@azmail.co.uk (Annotation: 'CC' is for anyone else who should read the email.)
- Subject: Ticket error (Annotation: Put what the email is about.)
- Body:

Dear Ted,

Thank you for booking our flights to Canada (ref. 0678664/F).

When the tickets arrived, I noticed an error. The surname has been spelt wrong on both my ticket and my wife's. It should be spelt 'Matthews' with an 's' at the end.

Please correct this and send us new tickets.

Many thanks,
John Matthews

(Annotation: Start and end correctly.)

(Annotation: This box is for the email. Remember to use paragraphs.)

(Annotation: Make sure you use a comma here if you added one after the greeting.)

Check that your style is right for the audience

- 1) When you email a company or a person in charge, use formal language.
- 2) Emails to family and friends can be more informal.

Practice Question

1) Read this email from a co-worker about a sponsored walk.

	Subject:	Sponsored walk

Hello everyone,

I'm doing a sponsored walk on Saturday in the Lake District. The walk is 25 miles long and hilly! I'm walking to raise money for St Mary's Hospital. Can you sponsor me? If you can, let me know how much you would like to give.

Also, does anyone want to join me? Let me know if you do.

Thanks,
Karlie

Write a short reply which says:

- how much money you would like to offer Karlie
- that you would like to join the walk
- why the sponsored walk is a good idea
